Red Cross Greets U. S. Prisoner Released By Communist Chinese

REPORT FROM OUR RED CROSS — by Dave Snow, Red Cross Field Representative

On April 5, 1961, an American Red Cross field director was waiting with an ambulance at the Hong - Kong Chinese border to meet Robert E. McCann, 60, seriously ill American who was released after a long imprisonment by the Chinese Communist government.

The Communist Chinese Red Cross Society cabled the American Red Cross on April 3 that McCann was to be freed April 5. The cable stated in part: "This society will assist McCann, accompanied by his wife, to leave China by Sumchun on April 5. Your society is requested to meet him at said time with ambulance."

The American Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, D. C. immediately cabled its Far Eastern office in Japan, to have the field director, Mr. Donald Gilkison, work with the U. S. consul general, U. S. Air Force, and the British Red Cross in arranging to meet the McCanns. The actual contact with the Chinese Red Cross at the time McCann was handed over was made by the American Red Cross field director and a British Red Cross representative because there is no regular diplomatic recognition of the Chinese government by the American government.

The U. S. Air Force evacuated McCann and his wife from Hong Kong to Clark Air Force Base in the Phillipines where he died a few days later. Earlier that same year, on March 28, Mrs. McCann crossed over into Communist China through the help of the American and Chinese Red Cross societies. The American Red Cross arranged transportation for Mrs. McCann with Red Cross staff members meeting at each point enroute from the United States. The American Red Cross urged that the Communists release Mr. McCann for humanitarian reasons.

The American Red Cross has been working with the Chinese Red Cross Society since 1955 to help ease the plight of Americans held in China. On May 30 of that year, the two societies agreed upon the delivery of food parcels to the U. S. citizens then imprisoned. Since then more than 2,000 ARC and family food packages have been taken to the border crossing point by an American Red Cross representative, and handed over to a representative of the Chinese Red Cross Society.

In January of 1961, Mrs. McCann wrote the American Red Cross: "He (Mr. McCann) continually writes of the regular receipt of the Red Cross packages, and how much they mean to him." Robert McCann was the son of missionaries. He was born in China, and was a businessman in Tientsin. He remained after the Communists took ovtr in 1949. On June 1, 1951, he disappeared. Despite repeated entreaties through Red Cross channels, Mrs. McCann did not learn until a few years later that her husband had been sentenced to a 15 - year term for "crimes against the state."

"Besides McCann, three other Americans are known to be imprisoned by the Chinese. They are: John Thomas Downey, 32, of New Britain, Conn., sentenced to life imprisonment; Richard Fecteau, 35, of Lynn, Mass., serving 20 years; Hugh Redmond, Jr., 41, of Yonkers, N. Y., sentenced to life.

Delivery of food parcels for the three remaining imprisoned Americans is expected to continue as long as Americans remain prisoners in China. The American Red Cross will give all possible assistance to their families in communicating with them.

Portraits Are In The Picture For Colorful Christmas Gifts

Predicted for Christmas '63 is a tremendous upsurge in the giving of family and individual portraits as gifts.

The reason is the influence of color and the new technical skills that enable professional photographers to better capture the character and charm of the person photographed explains the Professional Photographers of America, national association of studio photographers.

Today's high speed films and lights in control of lighting, plus the greater knowledge of posing and proper techniques enable portrait photographers to concentrate on the uniqueness of each individual, rather than producing formalized "postage stamp" type portraits as in the past.

The association urges that Christmas portrait sittings be reserved as early as possible. The volume of work accelerates right up to Christmas Eve.

Portraits at Christmas time often require cooperation from the studio in keeping the surprise from other members of the family. Sometimes, a studio has to keep Mom and Dad's portrait plans from each other. To maintain preholiday secrecy, the studio may send the bill in a plain envelop, or set up appointment sittings at odd hours.

Growing trend in holiday portrait giving is to place color proofs under the tree, rather than the completed portrait. This permits the gift receiver to choose the photograph he likes best — and it also eases the last-minute pressure.

In mid-1958 and early 1959, negotiations between the American Red Cross and the East German (Communist) Red Cross resulted in the release of 14 servicemen detained by the East Germans. These airmen and soldiers had strayed across the border where they were picked up by East German authorities. As in the case with Communist China, there is no official diplomatic channel of communication between the U. S. Government and the East German Government. As General Grumbrecht, ARC President said in 1959, "Once again it has been shown that in the Red Cross the nations of the world have a vital instrument that can be used to the advantage of all. The Red Cross is an avenue that can by-pass international barriers to accomplish humanitarian objectives."

Children are the universal, all-time favorite subject for portraits. Those made most happy by children's portraits are not parents, surprisingly, but grandparents.

There is also a trend toward using color portraits to decorate a living room or basement family room.

Festive wreaths and garlands made of evergreens, cones and herbs are, nowadays, closely linked to the celebration of Christmas. The custom of making such garlands for gala occasions actually dates back to the ancient Egyptians, a thousand or more years before the birth of Christ.
